8 MILLIONS DOOMED TO DEATH, SAYS RUSS WRITER

Declares Dr. Nansen Has Underestimated The Famine's Extent

CLASH WITH ARMS

Two Starving Bands On Way To Food Meet; 12,000 Slain

(Reuter's Service)

Helsingfors, September 11.—A well-known Russian writer in the course of an interview, declared that Dr. Nansen had obtained quite a wrong conception of the extent and misery of the famine-stricken people of Russia, and of the relief necessary to save them.

The famine, he said, had struck the most fertile parts of Russia, where the country's supplies were known. It would never be possible to supply food for the 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 people who were needing it.

At least one-third of them were doomed to starve to death. Starving hordes were fleeing from their homes, mostly in an easterly direction. Twelve thousand were recently killed at Bugulma, North-east of Samara, through two armies of refugees meeting and coming into conflict.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The grape crop, which is now being harvested, bids fair to rival the wheat crop, both as regards quality and quantity, so that the agricultural year has, on the whole, been quite a satisfactory one.

In the present circumstances, the prices of the chief commodities of daily life should soon show a decline. The Cabinet is contemplating the adopting of additional measures aimed at reducing the cost of living and curbing speculation.

"Fatty" Arbuckle Held For Murder In California

"FATTY" ARBUCKLE

(Reuter's Service)

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—A sensation has been created by the arrest of the celebrated film actor "Fatty" Arbuckle who is charged with murder in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, a film actress, who died after a party held in Arbuckle's apartment.

The District Attorney states that Arbuckle is charged under the section of the code providing that life taken in rape or attempted rape is considered to be murder.

The complaint was filed after a post mortem and the examination of several persons alleged to have attended the party. Arbuckle, who was at Los Angeles, returned to San Francisco and surrendered. The prisoner has declined to make any statement.

"Fatty" Arbuckle is well known in Shanghai and the Far East, having made a tour with the Ferris Hartman Company. He played a season here in 1912, when he was co-star comedian with Hartman. This was when Arbuckle was still in legitimate drama and some years before he became prominent in the moving picture world.

Peking Union Medical College To Be Inaugurated In Presence Of Founder

Dr. George E. Vincent, President Of Rockefeller Foundation, Tells Of World-wide Work In Aid Of Health Of Many Nations

BY WES WILLIAMS

Peking, September 6.—In an interview this afternoon, Dr. George E. Vincent, of New York City, told about the work being done in different parts of the world by the Rockefeller Foundation of which he is President. Dr. Vincent, son of the founder of the American Chautauqua, was formerly Dean of the Junior Colleges at the University of Chicago and later President of the University of Minnesota before taking up his present work. He is making a special trip to China to attend the opening exercises and dedication of Peking Union Medical College as well as to study health conditions and the progress of medical education.

CHINA WORK ONLY PART

The Rockefeller Foundation through its various subsidiary organisations, the International Health Board, the China Medical Board, the General Education Board and the Division of Medical Education is promoting work in thirty countries, of which China is one. During the past year (1920) the Foundation

1.—Aided six medical schools in Canada—$518,750.

2.—Gave an initial sum of $174,625 towards a total of five million gold dollars pledged to help develop a medical training center in London.

3.—Appropriated one million francs ($80,972) for the Queen Elizabeth Foundation for Medical Research in Belgium.

4.—Agreed to contribute toward the complete rebuilding of the medical school of the University of Brussels.

5.—Provided American and English medical journals or laboratory supplies for 11 medical schools and medical libraries in five European countries.

6.—Continued to construct and maintain in Peking, China, a modern medical school with a pre-medical department.

7.—Aided 31 hospitals in China to increase their efficiency in the care of patients and in the further training of doctors and nurses.

8.—Supported the School of Hygiene and Public Health of the Johns Hopkins University.

9.—Contributed to the teaching of hygiene in the medical school at San Paulo, Brazil.

10.—Provided fellowships in public health and medical education for 90 individuals who represented 13 different countries.

11.—Brought to the United States commissions of medical teachers and hygienists from England, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

12.—Continued to support a campaign against yellow fever in South and Central America and in West Africa.

13.—Aided government agencies in the control of malaria in ten states of the South.

14.—Prosecuted hookworm work in nine southern states and in 18 foreign countries.

15.—Helped to expand anti-hookworm campaigns into more general health organisations in countries, states and nations.

16.—Brought a war-time anti-tuberculosis work in France to the point where it could soon be left entirely in French hands.

17.—Assisted the government of Czecho-Slovakia to reorganise its public health laboratory system.

18.—Rendered various services in organising committees to study the training of nurses and of hospital superintendents, lend experts for conference and counsel, sent officers abroad to study conditions.

19.—Brought to a close its participation in war-time emergency relief by giving a million dollars to the fund for European children.

STILL MORE ASKED

Paying for the above items would strike the ordinary observer who slips into a second-class tram seat when he is sure of being earlier or later than his acquaintances as quite sufficient to make a big dent in the roll of even this strong Foundation.

Most everybody would feel satisfied with the policy of the Rockefeller Foundation to restrict its work almost exclusively to a few broad undertakings in public health and medical education. But it is quite evident that there are those who are not fully aware of the purposes for which this Foundation exist.

Last year, for instance, 39 requests were made of the Foundation to finance books, plays and inventions and all of them were declined. The same fate happened to the 115 persons who requested personal aid in the form of loans or outright gifts. Many appeals for help were of great value in themselves but even these had to be declined as were 124 applications from churches and institutions.

And, of course, any organisation having resources to the extent of G.$174,432,712 must from the nature of the case be interested in maintaining a 'safe' public opinion. Perhaps some of the 18 applications for

FIVE POWER GROUP WILL CONFER ON DISARMING

Small Nations Not Asked To Assist—China, Only When Needed

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 10.—There will probably be twelve advisers to the American delegation to the Disarmament Conference, including army, navy, aeronautical, economic and political specialists.

It was emphasised at the White House that the question of armaments would be left solely to the Five Power group, namely, Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan.

It was stated that the Chinese delegation would participate in the general conference only when Far Eastern questions were discussed and that the delegates of Belgium, Holland and other nations would be given seats at the Conference when their Far Eastern interests were affected.

It was also made clear that the Conference would not be open to delegates from all nations because this would impede its work and bring to Washington representatives of countries which cannot be vital factors in the decisions limiting armaments.

The American delegates will not have plenipotentiary powers. The American advisory bodies will include representatives of American womenhood and Labor and other interests peculiarly concerned with Armament probems.

EIGHTY IN DELEGATION

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 9. — The names of the members of the Chinese delegation to the Pacific Conference will be announced about September 20. They will number about eighty.

Dr. Phillip Tyau will leave on September 11 for Shanghai, whence he will sail on the Empress of Asia for America.

It is reported that the Ministry of Communications contemplates dispatching the Director of the Railway Department, Dr. C. C Wang, to represent the Ministry with the Chinese delegation to the Pacific Conference.

AUSTRIA HAS HIGH PRAISE FOR HELP OF THE LEAGUE

Mensdorff Says Restoration Work Goes Well In New Regime

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 10.—In continuation of the discussion by the League of Nations Assembly a [illegible] report on the [illegible] Council by the Secretar[illegible] Count Mensdorff, Austria, made a statement on the economic situation of his country since the League of Nations assumed supervision of its finances.

He said the work of restoration was making good headway, because the Austrian Government, adopting the scheme proposed by the Financial Commission appointed by the League of Nations, had decided to increase its revenue by increased taxes and to reduce its expenditure by the termination of useless votes.

He regretted that the putting into execution of the projected scheme of international credit had been delayed by exterior circumstances.

AUSTRIA CONFIDENT

Count Mensdorff concluded by declaring that Austria was capable of leading an independent existence, and of maintaining Vienna as an economic, scientific and artistic center, for the Austrian people had confidence in the League of Nations to relieve their distress and to provide for them the basis of a happy and honorable existence.

M. Spalakovitch, Jugo-Slavia, congratulated the League on the work it had accomplished. He outlined the two questions relative to the Albanian frontier which had been laid before the League for solution.

He feared there was a double danger of a conflict as to the competence to deal with the matter—first, as between the Assembly and the Council, and secondly, as between the Assembly and the Conference of Ambassadors, and he concluded by warning the Assembly against coming to a too hasty decision.

BRANTING CRITICISED

Mr. A. J. Balfour, Great Britain, expressed regret at the severe criticisms of the work of the Council advanced by M. Branting at the opening of the discussions.

Mr. Balfour said he recognised the right to criticise, but he protested against the accusation of levity against the Committee on Amendments over which he, Mr. Balfour, presided. That committee, he declared, had examined very carefully all the proposals for the amendment of the League's constitution.

Mr. Balfour endorsed the opinion of M. Branting, who had urged that the strength of the League depends on its prestige in the world but he contended that M. Branting's speech scarcely served to enhance that prestige.

Dealing with the question of mandates over the ex-German colonies, Mr. Balfour, while urging that the matter was one of greater delicacy than Lord Robert Cecil seemed to imagine, agreed with the view that the Council should

One Of Men Who Broke American Jail Taken

Henry W. Muncie, who was one of the two ex-soldiers who made a sensational escape from the American prison last Wednesday evening, was recaptured yesterday afternoon near the Shanghai - Nanking Railway station and is now again confined in a cell of the American prison. Amos Norman, the other fugitive, is still at large.

Chinese police at the railway station who have been under particular instructions to be on the look-out for the two fugitives [illegible] While a call was being sent for Detective Inspector J. W. Prince the Chinese police surrounded the place.

When Detective Prince appeared shortly afterwards the man under surveillance was permitted to leave his hiding place under the coach and when Detective Prince approached him he tried to give the impression that he could not understand English and gave answers in a French jargon. He offered no resistance, however, when he was placed under arrest and gave over all effort to conceal his identity when he was brought to the West Hongkew Police Station.

GOT ME, HE SAYS

"I guess you've got me, all right," he remarked eyeing the row of cells in sight.

It was plain to be seen from Muncie's appearance that he had a trying time in the five days he has been at liberty. His clothing was in rags and covered with mud and grime and his shoes were almost gone. When he was arrested a week ago he appeared to be a well set-up youth, but yesterday when he was taken his hair was umkempt and matted with mud while a week's growth of beard covered his features.

Some explanation of his bedraggled appearance was given when it was learned that Muncie in the time he was at liberty had made two trips between Shanghai and Nanking on the break rods. For the benefit of the unitiated let it be explained that when one travels the break rods one travels under the train prone on the parallel iron rods that extend beneath the floor of a railway coach between the wheel trucks.

It was also disclosed that in [illegible] Muncie [illegible] John K. Davis, the American consul at Nanking, and asked for aid. One detail of his escape and recapture that remains to be cleared up is the fact that the clothing he had on yesterday when he was arrested was not the clothing he wore when he escaped last Wednesday.

STORIES CONFLICT

Concerning the escape from prison and the events that immediately followed Muncie told conflicting stories, particularly of his first day of liberty. He said he and Norman obtained changes of clothing the night of their escape in different boarding houses, the location of which he was unwilling or unable to give. Wherever it was that he changed clothes it is known that he set out from Shanghai taking with him the clothes he had worn in jail, for the police have had these for several days.

On the day after the escape he said Norman had agreed to meet him at some point out along the route of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. He set out to keep this rendezvous and employed a Chinese wheelbarrow worker to transport him. As the outcome of a

BAVARIA REJECTS THE COMPROMISE MADE IN BERLIN

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 10.—The relations between the Bavarian and Imperial Governments have entered upon an acute stage, and it is stated that the compromise which was reached in Berlin after a night-long discussion between representatives of the two parties has been completely rejected by Bavaria.

Dr. von Kahr, the Bavarian Premier, is said to have declined to agree to any diminution of Bavaria's sovereign rights.

DECISION NOT FINAL

Berlin, Sept. 11.—It is officially announced from Munich that the Bavarian Government has not yet reached a final decision in regard to the Berlin decrees.

It appears that while a majority in the Bavarian Cabinet favors the rejection of the compromise reached between the Bavarian delegates and the Central Government, a committee of the Diet, which has been considering the compromise, desires to continue the negotiations with Berlin, with a view to obtaining further concessions.

It is now announced from Munich that the Premier, Dr. von Kahr, and the Minister of Justice, Dr. Roth, who are regarded as the strongest opponents of the compromise, have resigned office.

No Refuge For Germans Behind Depreciated Mark

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, September 10. — Various newspapers, especially the Excelsior and the Liberte, point out that the depreciation of the mark, if it continues, is likely to turn Germany into another Austria.

The Matin today warns Germany that bankruptcy would not provide her with a means of escaping from the control of the Allies, and particularly that of France, but that it would oblige her on the contrary to exercise a stricter and closer control.

complete its task in this respect as speedily as possible.

URGES DISARMING

On the question of disarmament, Mr. Balfour said he recognised the disappointment of Lord Robert Cecil, but insisted on the difficulties of the problem.

In the first place, wars and threats of war had prevented a positive result; secondly, it was impossible for the members of the League to work effectively for disarmament without an assurance that the Powers outside the League would follow the same policy; and, thirdly, important countries who were non-members refused to consider schemes for the limitation of arms and munitions.

M. Ador, Switzerland, described the position of the Red Cross organisation in the matter of affording relief to Russia. The agreement concluded between Dr. Nansen and the Soviet Government gave ground for hoping that there would be adequate control over the distribution of the supplies sent to Russia, provided it was loyally carried out by the Soviet authorities.

The Red Cross, he stated, would not step in unless absolute liberty was guaranteed to the commission of inquiry for conducting the necessary investigations.

RESTS WITH SOVIET

The Red Cross, declared M. Ador, always kept clear of any political action, and would avoid even the appearance of giving support to the Soviet Government, confining its activities solely to aiding the distressed women and children.

The solution was really in the hands of the Soviet Government, who ought to give proof of its loyalty by allowing Europe to intervene. He appealed for the drawing more close of the ties of co-operation with public opinion, especially by improving their relationship with the national organisations for supporting the League of Nations.

He concluded by affirming his complete confidence in the League of Nations, even before any positive results were attained.

The next sitting of the Assembly will be on Monday.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Had Hyui Yoeh-foh, a blacksmith, let well enough alone yesterday morning in the International Mixed Court he might now be serving a sentence of two years in prison. Instead he is beginning a three year term, and faces expulsion from his blacksmith shop and the International Settlement when released.

Hyui was on trial yesterday over a little matter of an umbrella which he had taken by mistake, according to his own story, from a tea shop at 873 Ward Road. He was accused of having wilfully and knowingly stolen it. He was arrested Sunday morning on complaint of the proper proprietor of the umbrella, who had recognised it while passing unsheltered in the rain.

It was not the first time Hyui had been in court. A search back through the records revealed that he had eight previous convictions against him. He had even once been expelled. He was adjudged to be a dishonest and undesirable blacksmith. Magistrate Li and Assessor Hutchinson passed sentence on him, two years in jail and re-expulsion.

When the fateful words were translated to the prisoner a scene ensued. He protested the severity of the sentence in disrespectful shouts and refused to leave the dock until the penalty was reduced. It would be better, he said, to go to the Arsenal and be executed than to serve two years in prison. He insisted on a change of sentence.

As the court policemen dragged Hyui off to his cell his demand was complied with: The two year sentence was raised to three, with the last year added as penalty for contempt of court.

ON THE MOVE

The No. 1 pickpocket of the Louza district, one Wong Aung-sung, by name, who gave his occupation to the desk sergeant as a shop assistant, but who hasn't turned an honest day's work in the last 10 years, was sentenced to 18 months in jail at the Mixed Court yesterday for having extracted a purse containing some thirty odd dollars from the pocket of a patron of a Chinese theater in Hankow road last week.

Wong's case came up yesterday after a remand. His full history was looked up by the police during the interim. Almost every statement he offered in defense and alibi was proven against him at the trial. When he proclaimed his honesty, witnesses testified that he was the "No. 1" light-fingered artist of the district. When he said he just arrived in town bringing the $30 with him, it was proved that he had been in Shanghai daily for the past three months. When he insisted that he was an industrious shopman evidence told that he had not done a tap in the past 10 years.

Police officials pressing the charge informed the Court that Wong made it a business of pocket-picking. He usually worked riding the trains between Shanghai and Soochow. It was his habit when a little roll accumulated to bash in the bright lights of Shanghai.

Wong, when he emerges from his 18-month term in jail, and resumed his vocation as No. 1 pickpocket on the Nanking and Soochow trains, will not leave the station compound in Shanghai after each profitable trip, for he has been ordered expelled from the International Settlement. And the police have his number, which is not "No. 1."

NEGLECTED THE SILVER

Tsang Ah-sung was sentenced to two weeks for stealing a table cloth off the well-known dining room table five minutes before dinner was served at 9 Haskell Road Sunday night. Tsang is a coolie who will leave the Settlement after the 14 days are up.

Prisoner Who Escaped From U.S. Prison Caught

quarrel he had with the wheelbarrow man over the amount to be paid. Chinese police intervened and arrested the wheelbarrow coolie without molesting Muncie. It was then that the police obtained possession of Muncie's clothing.

Muncie said yesterday that Norman failed to meet him as they had arranged and he therefore set out by himself and contrived to get as far as Nanking. He was without money there and afraid to show himself so he found it almost impossible to obtain food and in desperation he went to the American Consulate on Friday and asked assistance. There he said he was a German-American and employed German in speaking. At the American Consulate in Nanking arrangements were made to provide aid for the man.

OFFICERS MAKE TRIP

In the meantime some inkling of Muncie's whereabouts penetrated to Shanghai and by reason of this on Saturday afternoon United States Marshall N. E. Lurton and Detectives Prince and A. E. Balchin went to Nanking. They explained the purpose of their mission at the American Consulate and were informed that arrangements had been made to provide transportation to Shanghai for a man who had asked for aid. It was promptly and correctly assumed that the man was Muncie and the officers from Shanghai set about to effect his capture.

The Consulate had arranged to put the man on a train for Shanghai on Saturday night and the Shanghai officers accompanied a consulate official to the railway station. They found that the man they wanted had vanished and it is now believed that Muncie was in hiding at the station when the officers from Shanghai arrived and after seeing them ran away. The party of Shanghai officers returned on Sunday and, according to the story he told, Muncie made his way back to Shanghai from a place near Nanking Sunday night.

Muncie was kept but a few minutes at the West Hongkew station before he was removed to the American prison whence he had fled. On his arrival at the American prison he asked the same question he had asked shortly after he was arrested.

"Has Norman been arrested yet?" he wanted to know, and he was again told that Norman is still at large.

At times willing to talk of his experiences, Muncie at other times after he was taken to the American prison became sullen and unresponsible. He was unwilling to say anything of the women who visited the jail the afternoon before the escape.

IS SAFE NOW

It may be accepted that Muncie will not have another chance to free himself. In the past it has been the common practice at the prison to afford to ordinary prisoners a degree of freedom of movement and generally they have been permitted to remain in a large chamber in which the cells are located. Muncie is now in a cell.

Another requirement that has not been imposed in the memory of present officials at the American prison is that he has been obliged to don prison garb, the coat of which is in two colors of material with the trousers made in the same way.

No decision had been reached yesterday concerning what disposition is to be made of Muncie's case. It was said, however, that in addition to the charges of desertion from the United States Army and fraud that he was facing before he escaped, additional charges of assault with intent to kill and of breaking prison will be filed against him.

Muncie himself has since his recapture exhibited an air of indifference concerning what may happen to him. When he was asked why he came back to Shanghai, having once succeeded in getting as far as Nanking he intimated that he felt that he was surrounded at Nanking and by reason of the extensive floods north of that city saw no other way of retreating save to Shanghai.

The authorities have been willing to accept Muncie's statement that he has seen nothing of Norman for the past four days and the belief is held that Norman, more resourceful than his companion, has been able to put a considerable distance between himself and Shanghai.

G. J. Engberg, jailer, at the American prison, who had a glass of ammonia thrown into his face and was severely beaten and kicked by the escaping prisoners, has wholly recovered from his injuries and is again on duty.

Rum Ship Searcher Shoots Himself At End Of Big Raid

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Sept. 10.—A successful raid by prohibition officers on a Greek steamer was attended by sensational incidents. As the party was returning, Chief Narcotic Investigator Fitzpatrick drew a revolver and fired twice at his own heart. His death was instantaneous. He is believed to have become suddenly demented.

Seven of the vessel's crew were wounded and taken to hospital under arrest after a pistol battle with the prohibition officers.

Liquors to the value of $14,000, and drugs valued at $75,000 were discovered on board.

British Papers Greet Chaplin As 'Prince Charlie'

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 10.—Charlie Chaplin landed at Southampton this morning on a holiday visit to England.

Though rain was falling, hundreds assembled at the quayside in the hope of catching a glimpse of the famous comedian. The Mayor, in welcoming him, hailed him as the "King of Mirth." Chaplin replied, expressing emotion at this generous greeting.

An army of photographers and cinematographers took pictures of the proceedings.

With the morning papers publishing the time of his arrival and the route of his progress through London, thousands assembled at Waterloo Station to welcome Chaplin whom the evening papers christened "Prince Charles".

Cordons of police barred entry to the station of the unauthorised, but there was a wild rush of hundreds of railway officials, photographers and reporters when the train arrived and Charlie was hustled outside where a cheering and frantic multitude almost blocked the progress of his motor car, which conveyed him to the Ritz Hotel. Here Chaplin was compelled to address the crowd from his motor car before the police bundled him through the gates of the hotel which were then closed.

The crowd however did not disperse and Charlie came to the window of his first floor suite and threw flowers to the people down below who fought for them.

WHAT TO DO WHEN BABY HAS INDIGESTION

In babies and very young children indigestion is caused by errors in diet, frequently by over feeding. Its symptoms are loss of appetite, peevishness, wind, vomiting, furred tongue, bad breath, hic-cough and restless nights. The best treatment is Baby's Own Tablets, which clear away the offending matter and sweeten the stomach. With proper attention to the diet they usually effect a prompt cure.

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are the most valuable medicine you can have in the nursery. They are guaranteed free from opiates and absolutely harmless, and are a remedy for teething troubles, constipation, colic, diarroea, simple fever and worms. They promote a healthy appetite, restful sleep and regular development.

Canton, Sept. 4.—The municipal election for members of the city advisory council took place on September 1, and resulted in favor of the Labor element.

The noteworthy feature was that the members returned come from "the people" and not from the professional and official class.

The advisory council will consist of 30 members appointed as follows: ten elected by the citizens, ten appointed by the Civil Governor, three nominated by the General Chamber of Commerce, three by the Labor Federation, and one by each of the following bodies: the Educational Association, the Bar Association, the Medical Association and the Engineering Association.

Another Hearing Is Held In Humphreys Bankruptcy Case

Contention Is Advanced That Assignment Made To Company Was Fraudulent

In the bankruptcy proceedings in which Mr. Cecil Humphreys is involved a further hearing was held yesterday in the British Supreme Court before Judge Peter Grain when a motion was presented on behalf of the official receiver.

Mr. Reader Harris appeared for the Official Receiver, Mr. A. L. Dickson, Mr. P. W. Goldring for the respondent and Mr. A. C. Holborow for the Hongkong-Shanghai Bank.

THE MOTION

The motion was for a declaration that the assignment by the bankrupt of his business and assets to Cecil Humphreys and Co., Ltd., dated June 20, 1921, was fraudulent and void as against the Official Receiver (1) as an act of bankruptcy under Sect. 1B of the Bankruptcy Act 1914 and (2) under the Statute 13 Elizabeth C5: and that the Official Receiver was entitled to the said business and assets as part of the property of the bankrupt free from any encumbrances under or by virtue of a debenture bond issued by C. Humphreys and Co., Ltd. in favor of the H.-S. Bank, and for an order that the said Company hand over to the Official Receiver the said business and assets under its control.

Mr. Reader Harris said that if he could satisfy the Court that the assignment by the debtor to the Company was fraudulent, was an act of bankruptcy, and took place within three months of the receiving order, the title of the Official Receiver dated back to the assignment and he therefore asked for an order that the Official Receiver was entitled to the business and assets at that time. The facts were as follows:

Cecil Humphreys, the bankrupt, carried on business in Shanghai as a general merchant, import and export. About February of this year he approached Mr. E. G. Barrett with a view to the latter joining him in partnership. He informed Mr. Barrett that his office was in a very bad way, that the staff was rotten and that the books were in a very bad state.

Mr. Barrett consented to go into the office and tried to straighten matters out. A partnership agreement was drawn up but was never signed. Cecil Humphreys had considerable liabilities with the International and Hongkong and Shanghai Banks. Payments amounting to about Tls. 65,000 were made to the International Bank. The Bank of China also had a considerable claim. When the International Bank closed down upon Humphreys, pressure was put on him by the Hongkong Bank and the idea was then put forward that a Company should be formed which would take over all the assets and give a debenture to the bank.

The Company was formed on May 5, 1921. On June 20, an assignment excluded the liabilities of Humphreys and the Company whereby he assigned to the Company all his assets. The consideration was Tls. 73,000 in 73 shares of Tls. 1,000 each to be allotted to Humphreys or his nominees. The usual form of assignment was varied and it was clearly shown that it was intended the liabilities of Humphreys should not be taken over.

Mr. Holborow: We do not admit that construction of the clause.

OTHER POINTS

Mr. Reader Harris, continuing, said on June 29 the Company gave to the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank a debenture to secure a sum of not more than Tls. 401,000 which was then owing to the bank, and he would call evidence to show that since that [illegible] entered into [illegible] been advanced [illegible] Bank. It was [illegible] that the debenture [illegible] these facts be submitted that it was a fraudulent conveyance and it only remained for him to show that it tended to defeat or delay the creditors.

Evidence was then heard from a number of witnesses after which judgment on the motion was reserved by the court.

BABE RUTH EQUALS RECORD OF 1920 WITH 54 HOMERS; HAS 20 DAYS YET TO PLAY

Wins The $50,000 Prize For Equalling Total For Last Year

Babe Ruth made his fifty-fourth home run Sunday at Philadelphia, thus equalling his own world's record of last year.

The scoring of the fifty-fourth homer on Sept. 11 gives Ruth an estimated total for the present season of 63 homers, for if he maintains his present pace in the twenty remaining games of the American League schedule he will run to that number of circuit hits.

Ruth by his performance of Sunday earned, aside from his own yearly contract salary of $20,000 with the New York Americans, a special bonus of $50,000 offered by the club management at the beginning of the season as a prize should he equal his record of 1920. Ruth now is in a fair way to set up a record that perhaps never again will be approached.

Babe Ruth now is six homers or twenty playing days ahead of his last year's record. In 1920 he had rapped out but 48 homers by Sept. 11; he had made his final fifty-fourth by the close of the season, October 5.

From 1915 when Ruth first broke into the Big Leagues to date he has made 157, breaking the record of Cactus Cravath, lately of the Philadelphia Phillies who, during his major league career from 1912 to 1920 poled out 117 circuit hits.

Ruth this year according to last available averages is hitting the ball for a percentage of .365. He ranks sixth among regular players in the American league in the point of averages. His batting average year by year in the upper circle of baseball leagues has always been above .300.

Ruth attracted attention first as a long hitter in 1918, after he had been with the Yanks three years as a pitcher and graduated to the outfield because of his promise as a hitter. In 1919 he broke all existing home run records with a total of 29. At that time this was considered a great feat and thousands of admirers doubted that figure could ever be bettered. Last year's 54 was considered a mark that would never again be reached.

Ruth started out this season with five home runs in April. May gave 10 more, and June added 13. Ten was counted in July, 10 more in August, and six so far in September.

Ruth was given a grand reception in Philadelphia Sunday after the game in which he tied his record. Fans are cheering hard for him and wondering how high the home run record will hang at the end of the 1921 season.

Walter Johnson Hangs Up A New Record With 2,775 Strike-Outs In 526 Games

Walter Johnson has hung up a new world's record for strike-outs, 2,775 in 526 games. Cy Young's record, which has heretofore held strike-out honors, was 2,771 for 804 games. Johnson has been only 15 years setting up his record, while Young was 21 years accomplishing his strike-out record.

INTERPORT CLAY PIGEON SHOOT IS ON TOMORROW

McBain Wins New York Cup With Accumulated Score Of 40 Breaks

Great interest was taken in the shooting by the Clay Pigeon Club on Sunday afternoon as on the result depended the picking of the team to represent Shanghai in the Interport match against Tientsin on Wednesday. Read, Gibson and Hexamer were certainties but there were six others, more or less equal, from whom the two remaining members of the team had to be chosen.

A team shoot was accordingly arranged on both sides of which there were "probables" and "possibles," which resulted in some very close shooting, out of 200 birds one team scoring 182 and the other 176.

This was followed by a competition for the "New York" Cup, 40 birds under sealed handicap, won by Cecil McBain, who tied with four others in making over 40 plus handicap, and was successful by a quarter of a bird on the shoot off of a further ten birds.

TEAM SHOOT

The following are the scores:

Gibson	39	Beatty	37

OLD TIME STARS IN RECENT GAME DISPLAY CUNNING

Cy Young And Other Former Luminaries Win Victory At Cleveland Celebration

Old-time professional baseball players, some of whom played with Cleveland as far back as 1879, defeated a team of veteran sand-lotters 11 to 6, as one of the features of Cleveland's recent 125 anniversary celebration.

A large crowd was present to watch the former stars. Cy Young, the only pitcher who ever won 500 major league games, went to the box at the outset of the contest with Chief Zimmer, his old catcher, behind the bat. Each is well over 50 years of age. This famous old battery worked two innings, being followed by younger pitchers and catchers, including Nick Altrock, the comedian of the Washington American League Club, who was an added feature.

Only two hits were made off Young. He struck out two batters and gave one base on balls.

The old-timers' infield was the same that played for Cleveland in 1902, '03 and '05, Charlie Hickman on first, Nap Lajoie on second, Terry Turner at short and Bill Bradley on third. Not an error did it make. In the outfield were such famous old stars as Jess Burkett, now coach of the New York Giants; Harry Bay, Elmer Flick, Ollie Pickering, Larry Twitchell and Bunk Congalton.

Others who participated were Neal Ball, who alternated at shortstop; Fred Gatch, Paddy Livingston and Rosenbach, catchers, and Earle Moore, Albert Nelson, and Heinie Berger, pitchers.

Lajoie and Bradley were the only ones who started in the game to finish.

The old-time pros batted more timely and fielded better than the veteran sandlotters and but for Altrock's clowning in the ninth inning would have won by a more one-sided score. The old-time pitchers struck out nine men, Berger showing to the best advantage.

Burkett and Bradley did the best batting, getting six of the professionals' twenty hits. Burkett got three out of three times at bat and Bradley three out of four.

Gatch made the professional's only error. The sand-lotters got seventeen hits and had two errors.

BOY BOXER DIES AFTER LOSING A FIGHT IN S'PORE

Attack Of Heart Failure Hours After Bout Caused Death

Singapore papers of August 27 record the death of Mr. W. W. Gray, a local boxer, only 16 years of age, which occurred at his rooms in the Hotel Republic following a boxing bout in which he was beaten by Kid Mac (McKenna) at the Star Opera Hall the previous night. This was the boy's first appearance in the ring.

It appears that Gray complained of feeling ill after the contest and was given a stimulant. Shortly after his arrival at the hotel he complained of pains in his chest. About 2 a.m. he expired. Death was due to heart failure.

In an interview, the lad's stepmother, Mrs. Gray, said he entered the contest without his parents knowledge or permission. They were of the opinion that the boy was not in a fit condition to engage in boxing and had they known of his intention, would have stopped him.

Gray was a apprentice engineer at Keppel Harbor and very well-known. His father is Mr. W. G. Gray, of Gaylang, a master at St. Anthony's School. Much sympathy has been extended to Mr. and Mrs. Gray, and the deceased's four brothers and two sisters. The boy was examined by a doctor before he entered the ring and was passed as fit to engage in the contest.

Australian Cricket Expert Explains England's Failure

BY E. C. BULEY,
(The Australian Writer)

"What is the matter with English cricket?" recently asked my friend Mr. H. J. Henley, The Daily Mail cricket expert. At the moment the question is not so hard to answer as he seems to think, if I may be allowed to draw a distinction when comparing English with Australian cricket.

It is not an invidious distinction, least of all when made by one who is himself an Australian. Had Mr. Henley overlooked the fact that, while cricket was totally suspended in this country, in Australia they were able to carry on their inter State games and quite rightly did so.

Even the fact that the Australian cricketers of fighting age were on this side of the world during the war was turned to advantage by Australia. For while the veterans were teaching the striplings in Australia, the active generation of cricketers was able to organise a touring team here as soon as the fighting stopped and so created the backbone of the present formidable organisation.

But for four years English cricket was so dead that there was reasonable fear that it would never come fully to life again. Four years mean the loss of a whole generation of 'Varsity cricketers. The spirit of youth, which provides the very salt of the game, was turned to a sterner game.

THE AUSTRALIAN WAY

It is no reproach to Australian cricket to point out its better fortune, for Australia made enormous sacrifices too. The words are only written in justice to England's present representatives; and also as a preliminary to some criticism of English methods of organising Test cricket; whereby, as it seems to an Australian, England is placed at a permanent disadvantage.

The temporary disadvantage could soon be recovered, but Australia's present advantage can only be reduced by some wise discretion on the part of the English selectors.

The essential difference between Australian and English methods of selection is that in Australia, after performance has been duly recognised, the account is taken of youthful promise. Test cricketers have to be

HURON LOSES ALL THREE GAMES OF INFANTRY SERIES

Now Playing at Peking With United States Legation Marine Guards

The baseball nine of the Flagship Huron closed its series with the 15th Infantry at Tientsin Thursday with honors standing in favor of the Army at 3 straight wins. The Huron men, even though credited by Navy, Army and Civilian critics with first class baseball failed to score once against their opponents in the three games played.

The first game was a 3-0 win for Hutchinson, the pitching mainstay of the Army. He allowed but two hits. Weaver opposing him gave out five. Bunched hits with two errors by the Navy gave the three runs to the Army.

Bame pitched the second game for Tientsin and again the Navy failed to hit. They singled but three times. The final score was 1-0. Draper for the Huron gave six hits. He is said to have developed to perfect condition, and is reported by navy men to be fit to hold down any team in the Far East.

The final game was a 1-0 win for the 15th. Knoch worked for the Navy against Hutch. The Huron got two hits, and the Army three. Knoch is said to have outpitched the Army officer, but Horner let the winning run in on a passed ball.

Am'n Athletics Replace German Army Training

Berlin, August 6.—American athletics have been hailed as a substitute for army training by the German student body and the National Conference of German Y. M. C. A. secretaries has decided to obtain the services of an American athletic director to introduce American games and methods.

The change in the attitude of German students is characterised by a resolution adopted by a student club in Hanover stating that sport was "a moral antidote needed to save German youth from further moral ruin now that the military service has been abandoned."

The World's Student Christian Federation reports having received requests for funds for athletic equipment from various sources, including the request for funds for athletics for professors, and it intends to do all in its power to further the movement.

Efforts will be made to obtain the services of the present director of athletics for the American Army of Occupation as soon as the occupation comes to an end.

'You Know Me, Al,' Said He And Hit Ball Over Fence

Here is a story that ought to go down in the annals of baseball engraved on brazen tablets to defy the tooth of time. It happened in Constantinople, where, according to Radio Operator Fuller, the U.S.S. Scorpion was interned during the war, after America went in. The Scorpion had a baseball nine and some hundreds of rooters, all of whom were more or less players.

Lacking other games they organised a team among the Turks and they caught on well, so well in fact that a few months later, with two on bases and the score three to two, against his side, a doughty Turk stepped to the plate. Resting his trusty willow between his knees, he made obeisance and said, "Allah, Il, Allah. Oh aid me Al'ah." He knocked out a three base hit.

Then came the ninth inning. Up stepped one of the Scorpion batters. Three were on base. He had watched the Turk, but his ear had caught only part of the invocation.

Yet at the plate he paused, laid down his bat and raised his hands.

"You know me, Al!" he exclaimed and the first ball pitched went over the fence for a home run. The game was won.

Australian Cricket Expert Explains England's Failure

made is the Australian theory; and Australia is always catching them young and training them to the sternest and dourest aspect of the game by sending them on English tours.

There is nothing deliberate or planned about the creation of English Test cricketers. They have to earn their places by long-sustained performance as a rule: and to some of them the big chance comes too late. English cricket critics write about the Test disposition as though it were something inherent and not the result of training and use.

Match series have marked by a series of speculations eloquent of the total lack of English organisation. "Who were to be the selectors?" was a question which ought to have been settled by a system working automatically "Who was to be captain?" a question argued with a freedom which hinted at something like intrigue. "Who were to be chosen?" a question answered by the selectors without any regard to future Test matches.

CLASS DISTINCTION

Another permanent English disavantage, from an Australian point of view is the class distinction which divides an English team into two bodies of men. They can never tour, as the Australians do, in one family party which is practically a cricket debating society. With the amateurs staying at one hotel and the professionals at another, as the Englishmen did at Leeds, how is it possible to thrash out those little points which the Australians consider worthy of interminable discussion?

Looking back over the Test matches already played, it must be conceded that Australia owes its winning lead to the winning and drawing of games which Australia should certainly have lost. Only one example of a game lost which Australia should have won occures to me—the famous Jessop game at the Oval in 1902.

Man for man, England has usually been able to put into the field eleven better cricketers than Australia. The difference has been made up in a hundred little ways. As against better batsmen and better bowlers, Australia has had to rely on runs saved by hard fielding a higher percentage of chances held, the saving of bowlers' energies by rigid discipline in the field, the getting out of a batsman by a stratagem apparent from the Press box, and the hanging on to any advantage gained.

All this is team work. It is a permanent feature of Australian Test cricket; and a varying quantity in English Test cricket. Mr. Henley, an expert in the game is surprised that the brilliant individualism of English players seemed throttled by it.

It needs no expert to see that team work makes a good bowler appear a great one, as in the case of Warwick Armstrong. It needs no expert to see that a really fine bowler, as I esteem Howell, of Warwickshire, to be, for example, becomes merely a good one when his efforts have been nullified by lack of team work and he is made to feel he has to do it all himself.

These things have been pointed out over and over again by writers who understand the intricacies of cricket. It requires a bold man to indicate the remedy for the English lack of team work. I venture to say that while amateurs take one path to the wickets and professionals another, while amateurs stay at one hotel and professionals at another, Australians will always beat English cricketers on those little points of the game which arise from mutual understanding and close and brotherly association.

Notes Of The Mixed Court

A country youth who gave his occupation as that of clerk, convicted of a charge of having stolen some clothing was sentenced at the Mixed Court yesterday to return to his father in the country as penalty for his misdemeanor. There was a sentence of three months in jail also written on the sheet but that was suspended on the boy's promise to return home and start anew. Dau Yui-khok was the youth's name. He was arrested last week, and held over on a remand to permit the police to check up his confession and recover the stolen property from pawn shops. At the time of the burglary, Dau forced entrance to a Chinese dwelling house, broke open a box, helped himself to cotton clothing, and then left, after writing a note to the owner explaining the disappearance of the goods.

Sung Ah-san and Wong Ah-fok, two burglars, who have stolen silk clothing, wrist watches and other valuable articles in the North Honan-Kashing Road district for several weeks past were sentenced to four years in prison and expulsion after hearing of their cases in the Mixed Court yesterday morning. The accused admitted several further theft charges added to the original count against them, upon production of the pawn tickets for the goods. The pair between them had six previous convictions marked up against them, and one disregarded had expulsion.

A charge of extortion and disturbing the peace hangs over Wong Ah-sai and Wong Ching-yoong at the Mixed Court pending postponed trial for further investigation after preliminary hearing yesterday on the complaint of the skipper of three freight junks, enroute Shanghai from Haining.

The commander of the junks moored his vessels at a wharf near the stone bridge on Burkill Road Saturday morning. He had but barely made fast, when the two Wongs appeared and demanded $10 wharfage fees. When the duty was not forthcoming, according to the complaining captain, one of the Wongs bounced a blue brick off his skull. A Chinese policeman on the beat arrested the pair.

In court yesterday Wong No. 1 said that he was keeper of the wharf, and that he had merely informed the Haining junk pilot that the wharf was not a public mooring place, adding a request to move on. He denied the demand for the $10 fee, also the blue brick. A remand for one week was given.

The theft of a gold ear pick and a hair pin of the same metal, plucked from the coiffure of Ts Sung-sz as they dashed from an alleyway off Shantung Road on Saturday night resulted in the Mixed Court today of a sentence of 18 months in jail and expulsion for Dzau Yoong-tsung and three months for Yu Ah-kung. A third man implicated in the crime is still at large.

Four 17-year-old rag pickers, who always worked together, arrested Sunday on the charge of "loitering" contrary to the Settlement statutes and the customary rag picking methods, were sentenced yesterday in the Mixed Court to one month each. It developed during the inquiry into their cases that the quartette usually worked the Hanbury, Chaufcong, and Seward districts, and on several occasions, when opportunity offered, had picked up unguarded articles of silken clothing, satin slippers, etc., and immediately pawned them. They had been operating since April 21. They acknowledged their guilt when presented with the prosecution's evidence. The pawn tickets were produced, the goods recovered and restored to its owners, and the gang put into safe keeping for 30 days at least.

Says Ship-Building Dead In U.S. Except For Oil Tank Boats

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 11.—Interesting sidelights on the present condition of the shipbuilding industry in the United States were thrown by Mr. James R. Preston, a shipbuilding expert connected with the Fuller Construction Company of America in the course of an interview at Liverpool on his arrival from New York.

He asserts that the ship-construction industry is dead in America as far as freighters are concerned. Practically the only vessels now building are oil-tankers. Many large shipbuilding firms have closed down.

As regards general trade, Mr. Preston says that everything is touching bottom. This will possibly continue for some months, but optimism prevails, especially in the direction of the erection of dwelling-houses.

Peking Union Medical School To Be Dedicated

aid in influencing public opinion carried with them the thought that a certain amount spent for hush money would be a good investment. But the foundation takes the precaution to publish every year a statement of its income and expenditures and so these requests were turned down. Of the total of 788 applications for aid, 738 were declined and only 50 were granted.

WHY THIS AND NOT THAT

Dr. Vincent made clear why the Foundation is particularly interested in public health and medical education. In his own words:

"A railway spends more money on train and track inspection than on wreck crews. The factory manager looks solicitously after his machines and does all he can to guard against interruptions in production. The human body, which is vastly more complex than any machine, is in need of vigilant care and frequent examination. Yet for the most part it is neglected until pain and disability sound an unmistakeable alarm. Then the doctor is called in and too often is expected to do the impossible. He is thought of as a wreck crew rather than as a train and track inspector.

"It is often said that if all available knowledge about the causes of disease were actually applied the world over, millions of lives could be saved every year. This statement is true, but it may easily mislead. One is likely to infer that enough public health officers and sanitary engineers could usher in a hygienic millenium. But the thing is by no means so simple. The public authorities at best can control wholly or in part only about 20 percent of the diseases by which people are crippled or killed. Tyhoid, smallpox, scarlet fever and malaria can be either entirely prevented or kept from spreading; but tuberculosis, measles, diphtheria, pneumonia, influenza, and many other maladies are either less perfectly understood or do not respond so readily to control efforts.

"Valuable as this community protection against contagious diseases is, it must be remembered that about 80 percent of the menace to life is not dealt with, at any rate directly, by public authorities. The idea of prevention, then, will have limited influence until it is accepted not merely as a government policy but as a guiding principle in individual lives. Education of whole communities and nations, changes in habits of thought, a new attitude toward disease and toward medical service, are essential conditions of progress. So far from discarding the doctor, this new regime will give him a changed but no less indispensable task. He will increasingly be called upon to keep his patients well. The emphasis is shifting from cure to prevention. The consequences for the training of doctors are vital and fundamental."

WHY THIS MEDICAL COLLEGE

Dr. Vincent pointed out how we got our first doctors in the modern sense. They were young fellows who attached themselves to some doctor who had a good practice and became his understudy. Later proprietary schools were established which generally yielded a good financial return to the teachers. These in turn are being supplanted by endowed or state-supported schools. Training doctors is no longer a money making business. And Dr. Vincent gives this as the reason:

"The sciences which contribute to a knowledge of the human body and its processes, and the technical resources of treatment and prevention, have grown enormously and are steadily developing. Well-equipped laboratories in charge of highly trained persons, and elaborately organised hospitals with teaching and research facilities under the control of physicians who give all or a large part of their time to the care of patients, to instruction and to investigation, are absolutely essential for a modern medical school of high rank.

"Even schools on lower levels must possess in equipment and staff a minimum which calls for substantial sums. To meet this demand for increased support, states have made large appropriations and privately supported universities have received generous gifts. The Rockefeller Foundation has decided that in no more fundamental way can it contribute to progress than by helping strategically placed medical schools in various parts of the world to increase their resources and to improve their teaching and research.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS IN CHINA

"There are 22 medical schools scattered over China under government, private Chinese, private foreign and co-operative management. The history of nearly every one of them is an unbroken story of hardships with special chapters varying only in detail as to securing buildings, maintaining an adequate staff, securing students of adequate premedical training, attempts to better the standards and current expenses. In not one of the schools is the subject of modern medicine taught unhampered by the lack of something. None of them begins to compare with the best schools in Great Britain and America. But with the coming of the help made possible through the China Medical Board this omission will no longer continue for it is the purpose of this organisation to establish a school in China as good as any to be found in any other country.

"It is not the intention of the China Medical Board to supplant existing schools. In fact, financial aid to the extent of $225,151 was given in 1920 to other medical and pre-medical schools. Various hospitals received $62,221 and in addition fellowships and scholarships to the extent of $29,095 were provided in 1920 for Chinese and foreigners to aid them in special study in nursing and medicine. (It should be noted that all the figures given me are in American gold dollars).

"It is hoped that this institution will (1) conduct a thorough and practical undergraduate course for physicians, (2) provide in the due time graduate training for men and women who wish to devote themselves to laboratory work, clinical specialties, and teaching, (3) offer short courses for physicians who desire to keep abreast of progress in medical knowledge and skill, (4) afford reasonable opportunities for research, especially with reference to diseases peculiar to the Far East, and (5) help to extend in the Orient a popular knowledge of medicine and public health.

COST MORE THAN EXPECTED

"Since I arrived in Peking I have heard the wildest guesses as to how much this school is costing the Rockefeller Foundation. Some guess in Chinese currency and some in American dollars. There seems to be no difficulty standing in the way of wild guesses in either system of currency. And because the name Rockefeller is so closely identified with the school, the tendency on the part of the few who have any doubts is to err on the side of the highest figure compatible with their own inside information. I myself have heard differences of five million dollars in both languages.

"Why this should be so when there is available a full statement of the expenditures of the Foundation is only to be explained by the fact that most people have not seen it. One thousand dollars is about the outside figure for everyday conversation and covers everything from a life insurance policy down to servants. Beyond that figure the tongue becomes loose. At one million it is quite unjointed with most folks. But the fact is that the Rockefeller Foundation has published that the lands, buildings and equipment of their property in China are down at $7,552,836 gold.

"But this figure does not tell the whole story. Gold is now around two for one. Therefore, many guessers jump to the conclusion that in Chinese currency it should read $15,000,000 Mex. But such a jump would be in quite the wrong direction and Dr. Vincent made this clear in his interview."

"Exchange alone," he said, "cost us $1,750,000. Most of our purchases were made during the war and at war-prices. Ocean freights were never higher. Some of our material was reported lost en route to China and we duplicated the order. Sometimes this was done only to have both shipments put into appearance ultimately. The Board of Trustees had only two alternatives, either to close down on the building and allow the large staff already on the field to remain idle and disintegrate pending an uncertain time of peace, or to go ahead with the building in spite of the unusual difficulties. We had to make our choice. Because of the abnormal conditions prevailing at the time, it is the intention of the Board of Trustees to make an appraisal of the plant and equipment to arrive at a more normal figure."

P. U. M. C. AN ANOMALY

Peking Union Medical College presents an anomaly which is not to be found in the other enterprises in which the Rockefeller Foundation is interested. In practically every other country the work done is in co-operation with governmental agencies Usually the Foundation assists in the beginning and later the government takes over the work entirely.

Four years ago when the Foundation first assisted in work in Brazil, the government was spending only $400,000 for health whereas now is spending $2,500,000. The hookworm work in the southern states and in different countries was aided largely in the beginning by the Foundation. Each year the government increased its share and later the Foundation was able to withdraw without any embarassment to the work or hardship to the governmental agencies concerned.

This sort of co-operation is not the case in China. The undertaking of establishing Peking Union Medical College is assumed entirely by the Foundation. It is the first experiment on such a large scale the Foundation has undertaken in any country. The difficulties involved at each step, with the greatly increased cost due to the war, may throw some light on the question why the project to build a similar school in Shanghai was abandoned.

FUTURE PLACE

This Peking center ought in time to become not only an influence in North China and the Republic generally, but a rallying point for medical training and research for the entire Far East. It will maintain constant relations with Europe and North America. From time to time visiting professors from abroad will be in residence. To Peking will resort graduate students of ability and ambition. Practising physicians and medical missionaries will find it a place of stimulation, refreshment and congenial comradeship. Here, too, there is reason to believe, original contributions will be made to the world's knowledge of disease and its prevention. Already promising beginnings have been reported. The Peking Union Medical College aims at becoming a significant station in the world-wide system of medical education and research.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

EDWARD PARRISH, M. D.,

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

NEW PLOTS SEND BALTIC SAILORS TO SOVIET JAILS

(Reuter's Service)

Stockholm, September 10. The newspapers here learn that a new anti-Soviet plot has been discovered in the Baltic fleet, with the result that 400 naval officers and men have been arrested and taken to Moscow.

Another conspiracy is alleged to have been discovered at Kieff, organised by the Pan-Ukrainian Revolutionary Committee. In this case there were 180 arrests.

France Welcomes Aspirations Of The Negro Race

Better Class Of Scholars On Same Footing As French Students In College

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 11.—Various newspapers publish articles on the subject of the Congress of the Negro Race which has been holding meetings successively in London, Brussels and Paris. These point out that it is not in the dependencies of the French Republic that the legitimate aspirations of the negro race are treated as unwelcome.

The French deputy from Guadeloupe says the sittings in Paris were particularly interesting. The Bolshevist and separatist theories of Mr. Marcus Garvey were vigorously opposed by the French, Portuguese and Belgian delegations, and by an overwhelming majority of those from America and the British possessions.

Professor Burghardt du Bois who headed the American delegation was an outstanding opponent of the separatist theorits, which, he said, could only be explained by the anger aroused by the prejudices of their white fellow-citizens. He also repudiated any idea of affiliation with the Third International.

M. Candace affirmed that, so far from accepting the tenets of Moscow, the great majority of the members of the Congress accepted the view expressed by the French delegates, viz., that at the present stage of their evolution, the Collectivists among the negroes could not expect to liberate themselves without the aid of the white race.

All the delegates attending the Congress unanimously and spontaneously acknowledged their indebtedness to France.

The Liberte, dwelling on the work of civilisation accomplished by France in West Africa, draws attention to the fact that within 20 years the French authorities have instituted a logical and practical system of instruction which allows the great mass of the negroes to advance themselves by the diffusion of elementary knowledge, while the better class of scholars are placed on the same footing as French students, and as regards higher education the same facilities are available for the negroes as for the whole French people.

The Journal des Debats points out that the Congress recommended the establishment in the countries inhabited by backward peoples of local institutions suited to their progressive development. It points out that France does not wish to deny to her negro subjects the liberty to retain their religion and social customs, so long as these are more or less compatible with civilised evolution.

It is more honorable for the negro ract, the Debats argues, as well as more safe, for it to place itself in the ranks of the great nations in whose interest it is to give them increased privileges in proportion as they show themselves worthy of it. It concludes by remarking that it is to the honor of France that she did not await for this Congress to point out the path she should follow.

The Chinese Political Stage

BY JOSEF W. HALL

THERE is, of course, a conceivable relation between navies and fish. Both swim in the sea, and are the subjects of much discussion of an inane sort. It has, however, rested with the Chinese Admiralty to discover the true connection. Maritime states, puzzled since the days of the Phoenecians over the problem of naval support, have waited for the experts of the Chinese, the newest to navies, to propound the solution.

Let fish support the navy! Not, of course, fish—that is metaphorical—but fishermen, who, already leading the most squalid lives of any class of China's coolies, should be asked to carry the burden of the upkeep of a few gunboats, expensive naval clubs, and the harems of a few naval heads, as well as supply the interest payments upon the projected ten million dollar Japanese naval-fishery loan. Truly, the fish of the Chinese coast would have to be caught with coins in their mouths, like the one which supplied the temple tax to Peter, in order to support such a magnificent scheme.

"But," argues Admiral Li, "the navy protects the fishermen. Why should they not support the navy?" Safe to say that nine-tenths of the fishermen on the Chinese coast have received as much benefit from the Ministry of Navy as a shepherdess in Ordos has from the Ministry of Agriculture. Aside from that, if the navy is going to supersede an era of dutiful protection by exploitation of those who make their living from the sea, similar to the exploitation by the army of those who make their living from the land, one more crime against its people will lie to the charge of the Republican Administration.

But let not China neglect to communicate to the Washington conference her scheme for the conversion of navies into fishing fleets.

PAYING FOR THE SHOW

Eugene Chen, writing articles for the Canton publicity bureau, tells us that the motivation behind the change from Monarchy to Republic was financial. It was necessary to make China a Republic, he states, in order to pay foreign indemnities incurred through monarchical defeat at the hands of the Europeans. To his mind, a Republic is a better paying business, more able to pay off liabilities than an autocracy.

It has proved for the Tuchuns and Ministerial heads to be an excellently paying business—infinitely more lucrative than the monarchy. As far as the settlement of foreign obligations is concerned, however, the Republic is making no startling success. Daily, in spite of relief surpluses which never reach sufferers, it is doing more poorly at this task. The increasing lack of respect on the part of provincial officials for revenues under the control and collection of the representatives of foreign creditors is at one with the growing tendency to pillage and loot foreign property and kidnap foreign nationals.

LEGATIONS IN LIMELIGHT

Aside from the continuous task of keeping a capital at Peking, the ministers plenipotentiary have since the war, taken little telling part in Chinese internal politics. This change in policy is due to several factors: the absence of "strong" men; the preoccupation of England and France with more pressing foreign problems than China, the Japanese policy of simulated rectitude towards China, and the American policy of dealing with China as if she were in fact the sovereign, undivided, democratic nation which American sentiment would wish her to be. Frequently the ministers of the European powers have agreed upon acts of paternalism for the purpose of filling the breach caused by China's governmental insufficiency, and have had their plans vetoed by the American State Department.

It would appear that even this Department is coming to feel that it must take people where it finds them and not where it would like them to be. It has done the unheard-of thing (in recent days) of joining with the other powers in a warning to Chinese chieftains that the Legations henceforward will constitute themselves a moral court upon the conduct of these men, and if they create situations causing damage to foreign interests will refuse them the privilege of asylum (when their inevitable nemesis comes) in foreign concessions or ports. The warning was given (characteristically) after Ichang had been twice looted and Wang Chan-yuan had safely taken up residence in his British Concession mansion at Tientsin. Naturally, the chieftains will have no regard for the threat until they see it executed against one of their number. Minister Yen, of the Foreign Office, will undoubtedly find some way to protest such foreign interference in China's affairs, in spite of his placid manner of replying to every complaint sent him on behalf of damaged foreign interests, to the effect that his office has no control over the local authorities. It is logical that the foreigners should compel respect from those who have control. But the Chinese guide of action is that it is never harmful to go as far as one can.

The Legations have presumed the second time to suggest to Peking that it must discipline its favorite and much-spoiled son, Chang Tso-lin. This time it has briefly informed the government that if Chang cannot be prevented from interfering with the salt revenue collections, the accustomed surplus from the Salt Gabelle will not be turned over to the Peking treasury. As usual, the laugh is on the foreigner. It is plainly evident that, if Chang Tso-lin and other chieftains continue to seize the revenue, there will soon be no surplus to hand over, and with a little intensification of the process the Gabelle will be hard put to pay the salaries of its own revenue-collectors.

The Occidental never wins from the Oriental except by force.

FOR THE COMING WEEK

Pan Fu, Acting Minister of Treasury, in a one-act farce entitled: "Making the Autumn Festival Settlements."

At attempt on the part of the Foreign Office, which becomes alarmed after it has gone too far, to regain some of the advantages which it has lost by the ill-treatment of Yourin. A possibility of some Russo-Chinese parleys.

Another demand by Chang Tso-lin upon Peking for a few millions to "liquidate" the still-born Mongolian expedition. Military men, robbed of the possibility of pillage in Urga, must, of course, be satisfied with loot from Peking.

Continued discussion of the questions: "Who sent out Wu Pei-fu's convention call, and why was it sent?"

Topics In Brief

The Philippines have asked for a bigger debt limit, probably just to demonstrate their advanced status as a civilised people.—New York Morning Telegraph.

WOMEN IN STRANGE JOBS

We are so accustomed in these revolutionary days to seeing women doing almost every conceivable kind of work that it would seem difficult to discover any new role they could play in the field of labor. And yet—

In Mrs. Lillie Gordon, for example, Maine has long had a lady diver, as skilful and daring as any man who ever donned a submarine helmet. In Utah, Miss Claire Ferguson left her work as shorthand clerk to take up the duties of deputy-sheriff, which include such unladylike work as officiating at executions, and tracking fierce brigands to their lairs.

Miss Tyler, a pretty young woman from Montana, has ridden scores of racehorses to victory, attired in blue bloomers, blouse and blue cap. Rose Sturgeon, a girl of considerable beauty and charm, drives a mail-coach daily through the wildest and most lonely district in Oregon; while even Dick Turpin and Claude Duval might envy the daring with which Marguerite Bois, known as "Queen of the Brigands," and Blanche Marne have reaped their harvests of purses on the highroads of France.

In Cape Colony is a band of Nuns—The Sisters of St. Dominic—who not only do all the work of the convent, from ploughing and hoeing to milking, but shoe their horses, and repair all the farm machinery. At Nagasaki, in Japan, you may see any day from fifty to one hundred women working with an equal number of men at coaling ships in the pretty harbor of that city, and Nasso, in Sweden, one hundred and fifty women make one of the finest fire brigades in Europe.

For many a year all the graves in Lewes Cemetery were dug by a Mrs. Steel, one of the many female grave diggers in the various parts of the world; and in the Lord Chamberlain's department the office of chimney-sweeper was long held by a woman.

Lady lawyers and stock brokers, parsons, accountants and commercial travelers are now a large army scattered over the civilised world, and that a mere girl can do Governor's work as well as a man was proved not long ago when the affairs of New Jersey were excellently managed by Miss Agnes Gill, the Governor's secretary, during her employer's absence.

Only a few years ago we read that Miss Lilian Small, a nineteen-year-old girl, was acting a marine observer, noting every ship that passed her cottage at the extreme end of Cape Cod, and that a Miss Fuller was making a splendid harbor mistress at Tacoma.

A few years ago, Mr. Russell Sage, one of America's richest man, scoffed at the very idea that any woman could "make a million." If this sceptical Croesus had lived a little longer he would certainly have had to eat his words, for he would have seen Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs turn her back on society and a life of ease and luxury, to add nearly twenty million dollars to her fortune in a couple of years' daring and brilliant speculation in Wall Street.

He would have seen Mrs. Ella Rawes Reader, fresh from addressing envelopes for a dollar a day, prove herself one of the cleverest financiers of the day in New York, matching her wits against such masculine giants as Pierpont Morgan, obtaining concessions in opposition to the most powerful rivals, and settling a South American revolution over her breakfast table. And he would have seen Mrs. Hetty Green make a round million in twelve months after she had passed her seventieth birthday.

And what these women have done in finance scores of women have done in other fields. Mrs. Richard King has been for years sole director of a ranch much larger than the county of Somerset, and owner of cattle counted in hundreds of thousands. Her front door is a hundred miles from her gate.

One can mention at least half a dozen women who as actress-managers have proved tremendous successes. Mrs. Philips, of the Howitt-Phillips Company—well known in Shanghai—started out with a little cash and plenty of pluck, and in half a dozen years had a competence.

Today we can point to women doctors, women lawyers, women taipans, and women leaders of Modern Thought who are all making good in, and for, the Model Settlement.

THE MAH-JONGG CRAZE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir: As a constant reader of THE CHINA PRESS, I am sorry to say that your yesterday's article on the present mah-jongg craze contains an error as to the time of it being taken up by foreigners for, to speak only of Shanghai, there was already a considerable number of Germans, including me, in this city who played mah-jongg already five years ago, possessing at the same time also printed rules for it. Sorry to have to correct you, but trusting to be forgiven, I am, yours truly,

M. NEUMANN.

Shanghai, Sept. 12, 1921.

SMOKING IN THE TRAMS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Editor: I have often heard of and seen foreigners who complain that Chinese in the 3rd class break the rule of passing through the 1st class in the Tram-car. But, dear editor, how about the following:

I got into the 1st class of a No. 1 car. In entering it, I was choked up by the intense smoke in it. Two foreigners—not Japanese!—smoked cigarettes and one, a cigar. I was compelled to come out, but the inspector told me that I was not allowed to stand on the platform.

Now I wonder what's the use of the sign "NO SMOKING ALLOWED" in the car. If passengers are not interfered with in smoking, better take down the sign; if they are, what's the duty of the inspectors and conductors? And in my case, when I had paid 3 cents, where should I stay? Thanking you for the insertion, yours truly,

PAUL TSIANG.

Shanghai, Sept. 10, 1921.

British Women Slow To Avail Themselves Of Opportunity

BY HELENA NORMANTON

What is the matter with our English women, politically?

Up to the present the Mother of Parliaments contains not a single woman who can claim to be by birth an Englishwoman. One woman only—all honor to her—sits there, and she was originally an American.

Canadian women sit in the Canadian parliament, the first Australian woman M. P. has just been elected. The Dail Eirean has its Countess Markéwicz as a member for Dublin, and Ulster has now a whole group of women as members of her first parliament.

The Scandinavian parliaments, the Dutch parliament, the new Central European parliaments, all have numerous women members. It is the Englishwoman, and the Englishwoman only, who lags behind.

IS THE MACHINERY WRONG?

What is the matter with her? Perhaps the reason is that the political machinery at the disposal of thoughtful and earnest women is all wrong. The old party machines creak rustily along, and the women whose eyes are turned towards a sunnier future cannot see themselves travelling far upon such antiquated vehicles.

The parties have not even the pluck to describe themselves with up-to-date names. What does the term "Unionist" mean in the face of a disrupted Ireland?

What does "Labor" mean to a woman who knows the attitude of the trade unions toward the woman employe?

And what on earth does "Liberal" mean to a twentieth century woman?

What time have the voters today, men or women, to engage in historical research upon the careers of Gladstone, Disraeli and Joseph Chamberlain in order to understand what these meaningless terms once meant?

MUST SHINE AS THINKERS

Then again, the intense effort needed to win the suffrage in England necessitated a mass of machinery unprecedented elsewhere. It took thirty-seven different suffrage societies just to make John Bull realise that there was a woman's question. Most of these are now defunct, but half a dozen of them struggle weekly on; without the gumption to amalgamate and spend the money now wasted on unnecessary establishments in returning the best of our women to Parliament.

The final lesson Englishwomen will have to learn before anticipating success in electoral contests is that they must face constituencies, not as women, but as human thinkers, with definite views on all the main questions of the times.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark) is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Anecdotes Of The Famous

Josephus Daniels, ex-Secretary of the Navy, tells this story of a visit the late Lord Fisher paid to the United States.

Asked by Mr. Daniels "What was the best speech you heard in America?" Lord Fisher immediately replied, "Admiral Sampson's reply to my little address at the big dinner in Philadelphia, when I warmly praised the American navy in the terms they deserved, and expressed a sentiment of the friendship existing between the two great English-speaking nations. Admiral Sampson wanted somebody else to reply, but finally rose, and without preface made this brief and brilliant speech, 'Well, all I have to say is this—it was a darned fine bird that hatched the American eagle.'"

"Matrimony brings many trials and troubles in its train," sagely remarked Yvette Guilbert.

"Women foresee this, even if men don't" she continued. "Like, for instance, the girl who had just become engaged.

"'I shall love,' she cooed, 'to share all your griefs and troubles.'

"'But darling,' he purred, 'I have none.'

"'No,' she agreed, 'but I mean when we are married.'"

Lessons In Humility

As Applied To Society Girls

BY W. A. McKEEVER

(Professor In The University of Kansas and a Noted Educator)

Six Hundred miles from home, hidden away among the heavy woodland upon the edge of a beautiful lake, a half dozen society buds of the big city may be found doing kitchen work for their board and lodging. It is the pursuit of a ten weeks' course in humility for a group of girls of the upper-teen years, whose lives have been made over dizzy with the social whirl.

No party clothes of any kind, or other finery here. No gay, young men, or brilliant theaters, or noise and flash of the city. Just a big lake for boating and swimming, trees and hills to climb, horses to ride, tables to serve and an endless round of dishes to wash. And, as for garments—bloomers, middies and kitchen aprons make up the list.

It is a big Summer camp for girls, where scores of the younger ones are placed for a period of the rigors and simplicity of outdoor life, and the six society buds are temporarily their servants. Of each one of these superfine six, it may be said that "she stoops to conquer"—stoops to an unaccustomed task in order that she may conquer a haughty spirit.

The idea is a capital one. The substitution of a term of simple camp life, common work and the habit of wearing plain garments, for the gaiety and giddiness of society. But why should this valuable discipline be confined to the few? Can there not be found a place of brief work and humble service for the thousands of spoiled city girls? The following method has been suggested:

Let ten or a dozen mothers go spend a fortnight in camp with as many of their dainty daughters, and arrange beforehand that every stroke of the camp work is to be performed by the girls—the cooking, cleaning, fetching of wood and water, and the like. Have the mothers go comparatively "dressed up" with their fancy work. Have the girls go provided with kitchen and camp garments only.

In order to make the camp period really valuable for all, there should be a strict schedule of hours and duties for the standard day—a time for rising, a stated hour for each meal, a period for each hike, and other outing exercise.

There are so many aching hearts among women. There are so many that must always carry an overload. Perhaps through their brief period of humble training some of the camping society girls may have revealed to them for the first time the joys of service, and they may later find a way to extend their kindness into the hearts and homes of the needy.

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELIS

Mrs. Brown had ideas with a capital "I" on the question of training her Willie, and she said: "I'll not let any chances slip by lest my son should grow up to be silly." So, when Bill was a mere microscopic young tad his fond mother started his schooling; all the primary teachers who looked at the lad said: "Of course, Mrs. Brown, you are fooling." She replied: "I would have him surpass other boys and learn French while he's learning to toddle; he won't have any time for such follies as toys, for my Willie must grow up a model. Thus for many long years Master Billy was taught, till his learning was really a wonder; he knew all the isms, including New Thought, he knew what made lightning and thunder. He was posted on history, music and art, on chemistry, calculus, Choctaw; he could reel off statistics for hours by heart with a speed to give most people lockjaw. Yet vainly folks waited for wise William Brown to come up to the mark they'd expected; they agreed he knew more than all others in town, but one art he had neglected. In Hebrew and science our hero excelled, from learning's clear fonts he kept quaffing; but the force of his wisdom was largely dispelled for he knew not one thing about laughing.

EDGAR LEWIS PRODUCTION
"A BEGGAR in PURPLE"
From the famous novel by Andrew Soutar.

Can a man, busy with piling up gold, have love in his heart, or is he a beggar in purple?

He was a man who lifted himself to a position of power, but the revenge that steeled his soul for gold, cheated him of love.

He was beggared. His gold was tinsel.

A virile drama of the whirlpool of Wall Street, a man's faith, a woman's trust, and a revelation, startling and heart-stirring ! !

SEE IT FOR 100% DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT.
